

THE CREATION OF “DISNEYLAND”

The amount borrowed is $8,000,000. The document specifies “Fantasyland” which was the proposed name of the Park, later changed to “Disneyland” ... and the name “Fantasyland” relegated to the name of one of the theme areas.

The mortgage terms specifies that, if additional moneys are borrowed, the total must stay under $12,000,000. This limit is humorous considering that the Walt Disney holding company common shares presently have reached a total value of $60,000,000.00!