The Text and Academic Authors Association is an organization of approximately 1,250 members committed to the advancement of text and academic authoring, and to the creation of quality educational materials at every level. To these ends we provide assistance to both the published author and the potentially published author. We hold an annual convention at which information of mutual interest is shared, from publisher contracts to writing effectively and efficiently to understanding royalty statements. We offer authoring workshops to new and current textbook and academic authors. We have a broad committee structure that investigates areas of interest to authors, from Author/Publisher Relations to Ethics. We honor authors who have a long and diverse writing career by selecting them for the TAA Council of Fellows. We annual cite authors of current texts and texts with longevity with the TAA Texty and McGuffey Awards. Our member newsletter, The Academic Author, carries association news as well as current news about textbook and academic publishing.

The Academic Author is published monthly (except in July and August). It is sent to all TAA members (more than 1,200) and prospective members.
